Gary Edwards and Yaso Kunaratnam were in York, from 19 to 22 September, along with other IDS staff, attending the DSA/EADI conference on 'Rethinking Development in an Age of Scarcity and Uncertainty: New values, voice and alliances for increased resilience'.

Karine Gatellier will be in Kisumu, Kenya, from October 5 to 8, for the Alpha Network workshop on Verbal Autopsy Analysis.

John Humphrey will be visiting USAID in Washington on 28 September to discuss value chain approaches to linking agriculture and nutrition.

Henry Lucas and Martin Greeley will be in New York, from 28 September and 5 October, to attend meetings with UNICEF in relation to the RTMMV project and to present at a Social Science Research Council event on 'Food Assistance and Stabilisation'.

Lars Otto Naess is in Ås, Norway, from 19 to 28 September, as a visiting researcher at Noragric, the Norwegian University of Life Sciences.

Fatema Rajabali will be in Nairobi from the 26 September to 2 October to work with the Arid Lands Information Network as part of the Joto Afrika project.

IDS VACANCIES

Research Fellowship: Learning and Knowledge Sharing for Climate Change and Development (Ref 464) Full time, permanent

The Climate Change Team is seeking to appoint one or more Research Fellows to work on knowledge sharing and learning (social or organisational) in climate change issues in a development context. Working on one of the Team's key themes, the appointed Research Fellow will be expected to deepen the understanding of how knowledge about climate change is generated, shared, validated and put into use across a range of scales and contexts. They will use their expertise to develop research, programming and partnerships which strengthen people's capacity to access and contribute to this knowledge and inform policy and practice in developing country contexts. They will also investigate how barriers such as poverty and marginalisation impact on these capacities, and where opportunities to overcome these barriers may lie.

Preference will be given to leading scholars with a proven track record of innovative research and strong international reputation, proven expertise in securing research grants, awards and consultancies, and with experience of working on policy-related issues. The Research Fellow will take part in formulating new research agendas and developing research projects with partners, as well as feeding into existing ongoing projects. As well as research work and policy advisory work, we expect research fellows to contribute to our teaching programme, including the new MSc in Climate Change and Development.

The successful candidate will be expected to have a doctoral level qualification in International Development or a related discipline (an outstanding research career and practical experience may be taken as equivalent to a doctoral qualification). The candidate should have excellent knowledge of key issues and challenges in facilitating knowledge sharing, networking and communications in an international development context. They will also need to have a social science or economic perspective on climate change issues and a good general understanding of the international climate change and development policy context.

Experience of developing and managing relationships with a range of different partner organisations is essential.
