
Ghana: A Market Analysis

A report on the size and structure of the development sector in Ghana, by InterMedia

June 2005

Commissioned by:

About the Strategic Learning Initiative (SLI)

We believe that development and social change are greatly enhanced by the availability, accessibility and use of research and information. The Strategic Learning Initiative (SLI) stimulates learning and develops capacity among information and knowledge intermediaries who share this belief. We do this by facilitating learning and innovation and by sharing critical thinking and examples of best practice. Our areas of expertise are Capacity Development, Research, Marketing and Monitoring and Evaluation. SLI is based in the Information Department at the Institute of Development Studies (IDS), Sussex and supports the IDS Knowledge Services. SLI is funded by the Department for International Development (DFID) through the Mobilising Knowledge for Development (MK4D) programme.

About this publication

This market analysis is one of a series of reports commissioned in 2005 by the Strategic Learning Initiative to support the marketing activities of the DFID-funded Mobilising Knowledge for Development programme. The reports explore the size and structure of a number of key sectors of interest to information and knowledge intermediaries in development, including government, academia, libraries and the media. The researchers used publically available sources, enabling readers to maintain the accuracy of the findings, including contact details. Reports were commissioned for: Bangladesh, Bolivia, China, Ghana, India, Kenya, Mozambique, Nigeria, Rwanda, Tanzania, Uganda and Zambia. These reports were reformatted to be published online in 2009 and are available as a free download from:

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE AND GENERAL METHODOLOGY

At the request of the Institute of Development Studies at the University of Sussex in Brighton, England, InterMedia Survey Institute has conducted a desk research study with the aim of providing an overall market size and structure for each of the 12 countries specified in the research agreement. This study compiles and presents informational findings from publicly available sources, toward six specific categories of inquiry, as outlined in the preceding table of contents. This includes a full informal documentation of all such sources. Where key information is available but from a non-reproducible source, a direct and/or “deep” hyperlink has been provided, with the permission of the link’s host. Where appropriate, a brief explanation, aimed at guiding the reader toward the source’s intended use, may accompany the link.

Although research efforts have been exhaustive, the below information is merely a general snapshot of the market as InterMedia’s research has best been able to uncover it and, as such, cannot be guaranteed to be entirely comprehensive.

II. MARKET SIZE METHODOLOGY: INTERMEDIA AND DDO BREAKDOWNS

As requested, we have provided estimated market size figures for each category of our inquiry (i.e., categories 2 to 6, with category 5 broken down further by sector). We have derived this market size figure by simply taking the sum of all the organizations and institutions we have unearthed in each requested category. We are calling this figure the InterMedia Breakdown. As such, each of the following sections of this report begins with this InterMedia Breakdown, informing at the outset the section's corresponding estimated market size.

In addition, we have provided a second market-size breakdown for each country, in its own section preceding the categories 2 through 6. This breakdown, based solely upon categories and entries found within The Directory of Development Organizations (DDO) 2005, will be referred to as the DDO Breakdown. This breakdown is simply a manual count of the number of organizations within each DDO category in each country, as the DDO has organized it. Explored below is a broader description of the DDO and its categories.

DDO: A Brief Explanation of Use and Availability

The Directory of Development Organizations (DDO) 2005: Volume 1 (available at <http://www.devdir.org/>) is among the most comprehensive one-source listings that we have found covering development-related organizations within a particular country. Though non-reproducible, we have permissions to provide hyperlinks to this invaluable resource. These files are accessible to anyone with Adobe Reader and internet access:

Download either by Google Searching the below .pdf link,
<http://www.devdir.org/files/Ghana.PDF>, or access it directly from <http://www.devdir.org/africa.htm>.

About DDO

Though it appears to be a comprehensive development directory, the DDO makes no such claims; it primarily strives to include only those organizations that “fit the general criteria of promoting good governance, sustainable development and poverty reduction.”

As such, their alphabetically-arranged-per-country directory houses current contact information for all such organizations. This includes standard mailing and email addresses, telephone/fax numbers, and websites where relevant.

DDO Categories and the DDO Breakdown

DDO entries are listed by the below categories. To read DDO's own definitions of how these categories are defined and how the classifications are derived, please refer to the below information, accessible on <http://www.devdir.org/> and <http://www.devdir.org/faqs.htm#faq5>, respectively:

For each of the regions contacts have been annotated by the following 9 categories:

(1) international organizations; (2) government institutions; (3) private sector support organizations (including fairtrade); (4) finance institutions; (5) training and research centres; (6) civil society organizations; (7) development consulting firms (including references to job opportunities and vacancy announcements); (8) information providers (development newsletters/journals); and, (9) grantmakers...

The following are some examples of the organizations classified in one of the nine categories: (1) international organizations: including for example UN organizations, World Bank, IMF, IADB, AfSB, AsDB; (2) government: ministries, government institutions, planning agencies; (3) private sector support organizations: chambers of commerce and industry, fairtrade organizations, trade promotion organizations for SMEs; (4) finance institutions: central banks, national development banks, commercial banks, credit unions, microfinance institutions, finance houses; (5) training and research organizations: universities, research centres and institutions, training institutes; (6) civil society organizations: development foundations and associations, membership development organizations, microfinance institutions, faith-based development organizations, development programmes and projects; (7) development consulting firms: including job opportunities and vacancy announcements; (8) information providers: development newsletters/journals, development publishers, web resources, databases; (9) grantmakers: fundraising, charity and philanthropic organizations.

Thus, we have provided a count of the number of entries within each category for each country—i.e., the DDO Breakdown of market size for said-category in said-country. The DDO Breakdown, therefore, looks like this: “Civil Society Organization (CSO): 169”. This means that DDO lists 169 civil society organizations active and present in the country in question. (The term in parentheses is the term as it appears in the DDO entry.)

DDO BREAKDOWN FOR GHANA

Below is the DDO Breakdown for market size in Ghana:

- 1) International Organizations (International): 36
- 2) Government Institutions (Government): 37
- 3) Private Sector Support Organizations (Private sector): 21
- 4) Finance Institutions (Finance): 146
- 5) Training & Research (Training and Research): 62
- 6) Civil Society Organization (CSO): 169
- 7) Development Consulting Firms (Consulting): 5
- 8) Information Providers (Information): 3
- 9) Grantmakers (Grantmakers): 2

For additional information, please refer directly to the DDO.

III. CATEGORY 2: SOCIAL SCIENCE RESEARCH INSTITUTES AND SOCIAL SCIENCE/DEVELOPMENT STUDIES DEPARTMENTS

INTERMEDIA BREAKDOWN

Below is the InterMedia Breakdown for social science research institutes and/or social science/development departments, broken down by subject area. Due to hybrid programs, departments, and sub-departments/fields, as well as natural categorical overlap, the below is a very rough estimation and must be regarded as a heuristic guide only:

- 1) Humanities (Liberal/Performing Arts, History, Literature, Languages, Classical/Cultural Studies, Gender Studies, Anthropology, Psychology, Sociology, Philosophy, Religious Studies, etc.): 47
- 2) Economics, Business Administration, Management, Accounting, Commerce, Trade: 23
- 3) Information & Communication Technology, Audio-Visual Arts, Broadcasting, Journalism, Media & Communication Studies: 10
- 4) Political Science, Public Administration, Government, Policy, Law: 9
- 5) International Affairs, Conflict Studies, National Security, Peacemaking: 7
- 6) Public Health, Pharmacology, Nursing, Medicine, Kinesiology: 13
- 7) Education & Specialized Training, Research & Training Methods, Statistics, Library Sciences: 34
- 8) Social Welfare, Rural & Urban Development: 19
- 9) Pure & Applied Biological, Environmental & Earth Sciences, Food & Agricultural Studies: 37
- 10) Pure & Applied Physical Sciences, Material & Polytechnical Engineering: 34

Note: Methodological Variance

Please take note that the total numbers of Ghana's research institutions may appear particularly large compared to those totals reported for some of the comparable countries covered up to this point. This variance is a result of recent changes and improvements in our classification- and count-methods.

Each country's count has thus far been tallied under a slightly different set of categories to match each country's unique research market; often times, past counts have excluded scientific and technical schools altogether. However, because science, technology and development can, and perhaps should, be viewed as inseparable functions, we have recently decided not only to take these previously excluded fields into consideration, but also to tally individual departments and programs, rather than institutions alone, in every category, for greater target specificity.

Media Overview (BBC)

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/africa/country_profiles/1023355.stm

Ghana enjoys a high degree of media freedom, and the country's private press and broadcasters operate without major restrictions. The private press is lively, and often carries criticism of government policy. Animated phone-in programmes on a wide range of topics are staple fare on many radio stations. Private radio stations crowd the FM dial in Accra and elsewhere, most of them chasing a limited amount of advertising revenue. The state-run GBC runs national TV and radio networks. The BBC and Radio France Internationale are available on FM in Accra.
